

Abstract

The present invention provides a laminate in which at least one fluororesin is used and which is highly impermeable to fuels.

- 5 The present invention is a laminate having a layer (A) comprising a fluororesin and a layer (B) comprising a fluorine-free organic material, wherein said laminate has a fuel permeation rate of not higher than $1.5 \text{ g/m}^2/\text{day}$.